7-42-1	Charitable Organizations	Charitable organizations; registration	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 17-1763	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 17-1763	Charity Registration	Yes. The regulation is used as the outline in established procedures to determine who is required to register in this capacity and to keep the public informed of what charitable organizations are registered to operate in the State.	Yes. The regulation has established the framework necessary to insure all charitable organizations operating within the State are registered and in good standing with the Unit.	Should the regulation ever be revoked, the State would lack the ability to keep the public aware of what charitable organizations are operating as required and which organizations are not. This regulation is vital to the upkeep and maintenance of the program search engine located on the Kansas Attorney General's website.	No. The regulation is dated to 1982 which means there are many areas of the regulation that through working with the information have become apparent they need updated. The fees charged are a main concern as the program is not currently 100% self-supporting. An increase of the registration fee from $25 to $100 would be instrumental in moving the program to being self-supporting.	Currently In Active Use. The program is in active use.	No. The Unit is not self-supporting but with an increase of registration fees, it easily could be.	No.	No.	This program is not affiliated with the federal government in any way.	No.	N/A	Without this regulation in place the Unit would be unable to keep the public informed of verifiable registered charitable organizations operating in the State. This could have the potential to endanger the public of making informed decisions concerning which charitable organizations are legitimately operating within the State. This program was under the direction of the Kansas Secretary of State's Office until 2021. All regulations refer to the Kansas Secretary of State's Office as the point of contact concerning this program. There are many areas of the regulation that should be updated to reflect the current agency responsible for the administration of the program. Fees have not been updated from the original $25 resulting in the program being reliant of State funds to support it's operation. A fee increase to $100 with placement into a Charitable Organizations fund would aid in moving the program to a self sufficient operation. Currently, the Unit is under staffed and could benefit from the addition of 1 additional administrative staff position. There is currently no investigative staff assigned to the Unit which impedes the timely processing of public complaints and investigations into alleged wrong doing.
7-42-2	Charitable Organizations	Professional fund raisers; registration	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 17-1763	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 17-1764	Charity Registration	Yes. The regulation is utilized the same way as registration of charitable organizations. These are the people who are actually soliciting for donations to the charitable organizations.	Yes. The regulation serves as a means to keep the registration search engine on the Kansas Attorney General's website up to date and accurate to inform the public of the fund raiser registration status with the State.	Should the regulation ever be revoked, the State would lack the ability to keep the public aware of what fund raisers are operating as required and which are not. This regulation is vital to the upkeep and maintenance of the program search engine located on the Kansas Attorney General's website.	No.	Currently In Active Use. The program is in active use.	No.	No.	This program is not affiliated with the federal government in any way.	No.	N/A	Without this regulation in place the Unit would be unable to keep the public informed of verifiable registered fund raisers operating in the State. This would have the potential to endanger the public of making informed decisions concerning which fund raisers are operating according to the established procedures.
7-42-3	Charitable Organizations	Professional fund raisers; annual report	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 17-1763	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 17-1764	Charity Registration	Yes. The regulation is utilized to determine the level of fund raising activities performed by a professional fund raiser. This information could impact the requirements in regards to reporting.	Yes. The regulation is a means for insuring professional fund raisers are registering properly with the Unit.	Should the regulation ever be revoked, the impact on the Unit would be minimal but could potentially be a means for fund raisers to circumvent the registration requirements that keep the public informed of those who comply with State regulations.	No.	Currently In Active Use. The program is in active use.	No.	No.	This program is not affiliated with the federal government in any way.	No.	N/A	Without this regulation in place, the registration of professional fund raisers could potentially be compromised and not provide adequate information to the public on properly registered fund raisers.
7-42-4	Charitable Organizations	Professional solicitors; registration	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 17-1763	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 17-1765	Charity Registration	Yes. The regulation is utilized to account for all persons actively soliciting donations from the public for a charitable organization.	Yes. The regulation is a means for insuring professional solicitors are registering properly with the Unit.	Should the regulation ever be revoked, the accountability of the solicitors could jeopardize the public confidence in the available information to them regarding what solicitors are legitimate and which are not. This has the potential to harm the public by means of fraudulent activities by illegal and criminal entities.	No.	Currently In Active Use. The program is in active use.	No.	No.	This program is not affiliated with the federal government in any way.	No.	N/A	Without the regulation in place, the registration of professional solicitors would be compromised resulting in the potential to endanger the public when choosing an organization to donate to. Without the regulation in place, criminal activities could increase, eroding the confidence in our Agency.

Many perpetrators of abuse have connections to law enforcement officers or agencies or they are employed as law enforcement officers themselves. Law enforcement officers, or those who have connections to law enforcement officers, can abuse their access to records and databases in order to locate victims. This abuse of power can come as a request for participant information from the Safe At Home program. Revocation of the steps in this regulation would make it easier for law enforcement to request participant information without the oversight of their agency's chief law enforcement officer and risking the safety of Kansans participating in SAH.	No	In active use		No	No		No		To protect the confidential information of SAH participants, the SAH program coordinator is the only person with access to the SAH participant database. There is one additional staff member in the Victim Services Division who is trained to manage the database, but will only be granted access if absolutely necessary. If directed by a court order, SAH is required to release the information to the court. Also, if SAH receives a law enforcement request for the release of participant information, the SAH program coordinator, along with supervisory staff, will thoroughly review the request to verify its integrity and validity. If the request is found to be valid, and all steps laid forth in the rule are complied with, the requested information will be released to the requesting officer.
7-44-5	Address Confidentiality Program	Forwardable mail	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 75-455 and K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 75-456	K.S.A. 2022 Supp. 75-455	Victim Services Division	AKA: Safe at Home Yes	Yes	This regulation defines the type of mail that is eligible for forwarding. Without the clarification and definition of the type of mail that is eligible for forwarding, all mail could be defined as eligible for forwarding, which would affect the amount of money spent on the SAH program. If financial expenditures on the program were not sustainable, the implementation of the SAH could be in jeopardy. For safety purposes, Kansans participating in the Safe At Home program rely on first class mail forwarding services to safeguard their physical address from perpetrators of abuse. For cost-effective purposes, mail marked as "presorted standard" and "presorted marketing" is not mail eligible for forwarding. Packages are forwarded as a courtesy when the Safe At Home program coordinator is notified by a SAH participant that they are expecting a package.	No	In active use		No	No		No		SAH participants supply the substitute P.O. Box to the entities in lieu of providing their confidential mailing address. That mail is forwarded to a P.O. Box that only the SAH program coordinator has access to. The SAH program coordinator checks the mail on a regular basis. When any mail is received, it is mailed out to the participant's mailing address the same or next day. Any mail that is not first-class mail will not be forwarded, including magazines and non-profit items. If a participant is expecting a package containing essential items, such as medical supplies, the participant is required to call the SAH program coordinator to notify them of the package. Packages that are deemed non-essential will be returned to the sender and the participant must make alternate arrangements in order to receive their package.

In 2013 the Kansas Roofing Registration Act (KRRA) was put into law at the request and encouragemnet of the Kansas Roofing Association (KRA). KRA lobbied to have the roofing industry regulated to curb fly-by-night and predatory roofing companies who were/are giving the industry a poor public image.	YES. The KRRA is used to both track and monitor roofing companies operating within the State of Kansas. Registration is required as defined by the definitions portion of the Act. The definitions also serve as an outline for enforcement actions taken should a roofing company not be in compliance with the Act.	Revocation would return the State to a position of being unable to protect the public from predatory roofing companies operating within Kansas. This Act is instrumental in ensuring registered roofing companies are adequately insured to protect the homeowner from claims should someone be injured performing roofing related work on their property. Should a homeowner have any complaints involving a roofing company, the Roofing Registration Unit (RRU) can readily determine the roofing company business location, ownership and how to reach them.	No.	Currently In Active Use.	The program is in active use.	No. The RRU is a self supporting operation that is 100% funded by registration fees and enforcement action settlements.	No.	This program is not affiliated with the federal government in any way although many States have or are movng to registration of roofing companies.	No. This program is 100% self sustaining.	N/A	The program requires a definition of a roofer for registration and enforcement action purposes. There are "handyman" services that are exempt from registration and these numbers are extremely low. This exemption was made by the legislators to protect the small business owner who infrequently do roofing related work. Without the regulation in place, enforcement actions would be difficult. By defining who a roofing contractor is, oversight and compliance can be achieved.

The initial application is necessary to gather pertinent information regarding the ownership, business location, insurance coverage and contact information along with additional company information to build a file for the company in order to meet the requirements of the KRRA.	Yes. The application serves as the basis for registration of the company for placement on the Roofing Registration search engine for the public to verify a roofer's status with the Agency.	Without the registration of all roofing companies operating within the State of Kansas, roofers would not be regulated resulting in the potential for fraud and abuse of homeowners throughout the State. Yes. The renewal application is vital to keep all information current concerning the roofing company. Inaccurate information would impede the investigative process should a complaint be received.	Without the registration of all roofing companies operating within the State of Kansas, roofers would not be regulated resulting in the potential for fraud and abuse of homeowners throughout the State.
